b. Mr. [REDACTED] with the help of [REDACTED] of A&E Staff, is making an analysis of the reactions of students to the lecture summaries and review questions which were introduced for the first time in this course. Results of this analysis will help the staff determine whether or not to continue either or both of these study aids.

2. Intelligence Review Course

A report has been submitted on the first Intelligence Review Course to the Chief, Intelligence School, including the student critiques and a summary of these critiques.

3. Orientation Course at [REDACTED]

Mr. [REDACTED] has had a telephone conversation with the Chief of Logistics at the base regarding a proposed orientation program for his personnel. It was agreed that the Orientation Faculty would visit the base on 29 November to work out administrative details. The course will probably be given 5 - 6 December.

4. Summary of Fall Activities

During the last seven weeks, the faculty has run four formal training courses involving 152 students. With a reduced faculty, this brings the student faculty ratio to about 50:1. Only because of the additional help from members of the Intelligence Production Faculty, was the staff able to complete this heavy schedule satisfactorily. Regular assistance from other faculty groups will be required if course enrollments remain at the present level.
